Some of the novels on this list have been produced as films. While there is value in viewing a director's interpretation of a novel, it cannot replace an individual's reading experience. Readers, especially middle school students, remember their first encounter with literature more accurately in the written form. Therefore, it is imperative that any novel on this list be read BEFORE a movie is seen.

Reading 30 minutes per day will maintain one's reading level.
Reading more could boost one's reading level.
